Letter

Dear John,

I hope this letter finds you well. I felt warmly welcomed visiting your house last week and enjoyed every moment when I was in Australia.

I had a wonderful experience in spending time with you and your family in Melbourne. Although, I have never met your parents before, I felt that I knew them since ages. In particular, the one day visit to Sydney was a memorable trip to me. I would like to thank you for an amazing and a refreshing holiday.

However, when I returned to India I realised that my wallet is missing. Initially I was very puzzled but soon I realized that I left it at your house. I remember that I have placed it at the left side of the desk in your bedroom.

I have some business appointments, scheduled next week in Canada and will be leaving ^{for} ^{at the} end of this week. All my credit and debit cards are in my purse, I request you to courier it as soon as possible via "DTC" two day delivery service. Please let me know the charges for the mailing my wallet.

I am looking forward to see you soon in India.

All the best!

Akhay Kumar Ghosh
