

~~People~~ Possessing a lot of money and having less leisure time is considered to be of more value than earning less money and having a lot of spare time. Although having lots of cash can satisfy your materialistic needs it cannot buy you lost time and health and for this reason I value having lots of leisure time more important compared to having lots of money.

Having all the money in the world has its own merits. Like we can fulfil our dreams on buying goods and items that we really desire. If we want a new gadget or a new home we can make a decision without looking into the financial aspect of whether we can afford it. On another note, people having less "free time" are always busy and are engaged in some work related activities.

They are preoccupied and always their minds are engaged. Hence they are not idle and bored. However fully occupied with work life will cause their minds to be overburdened and they would not get the needed rejuvenation by taking time off work for relaxation and leisure activities.

On the other hand, having more leisure time for recreational activities that free up the mind can improve the health of the person. He is more relaxed and has less stress than his counterparts who do not have that much leisure time. Moreover, everyone lives only once and age once lost cannot be regained. Time that is lost, such as youth, once gone cannot be recovered. So we must utilize our time doing things we enjoy and leisure time helps us achieve a life without worries and stress. On the downside, we cannot live a glamorous life and spend money on expensive goods like rich people do. However we must be able to fulfil our basic needs and necessities and for this sufficient money is required.

To conclude, having lots of money with no leisure time will lead to a stressful life while person having more leisure time can lead to a laid-back comfortable life. But rich person must have sufficient money to satisfy basic needs.