

It is often argued that pupil outperforms themselves if they are encouraged with appreciation and awards instead of punishment. This essay totally agrees with that notion as it will not only boost their self-confidence but also increases competitive spirit in different areas of life among them.

Students who believe in themselves and are confident enough can excel in their academic as well as social skills. This If the students are awarded with rewards and recognition time to time, it improves their confidence and also keep their minds healthy. As a result, they perform better in their studies as well. I have tried this strategy on my toddler daughter as well. ~~as~~ She tends to outperform when appreciated for small achievements.

Rewarding the young minds on a good deed can also increase competitive spirit. Children often compete in sports for awards and trophies, If encouraged and appreciated. This will improve their performance in extra curricular activities which will be helpful for overall development of kids. Many schools and institutions are encouraging kids to participate at state and national levels and also helps them to get into good colleges as well.

All in all, younger minds should be rewarded at all stages of life for their academic as well as psychological development. The kids tend to shine and rise if appreciated.
