

These days, the offices map has been changed to big open rooms as compared to individual private chambers. This essay will discuss the advantages and disadvantages of such office layout, and provide a logical conclusion.

There are many advantages of having big size rooms like, the employees are able to communicate with each other very easily and large number of workforce can be accommodated in one room. Firstly, when employees are sitting next to each other, and there are no walls between them, then they are able to communicate well, and are able to solve a problem together. Secondly, when there are big hall offices room, the seating capacity of the room can be increased two times as compared to having separate chambers for everyone. For example, as the population of the country is growing day by day, and there is a capacity constrain, so making large size rooms could make more space for greater number of experts to do their work.

On the other hand, this concept also has certain drawbacks like, lack of privacy, noise disturbances. Firstly, when company workers are doing their work in open spaces, it often leads to lack of privacy, and their confidential data can be easily seen by someone sitting next to them, thus having possible chances of data leakage. Secondly, when a large group of people is formed in a big room, there are possible chances of noise disturbances, and making it difficult for the senior managers to have a meeting with their subordinates. For instance, due to both these factors, the work efficiency gets low, and results in low output work.

To conclude, as the nation population is increasing day by day, and due to less land, this concept of large space offices works well, so its advantages outweigh the disadvantages.
